CINCINNATI, OHIO - Fibonacci Brewing Company is thrilled to announce the release of Castanea No.9, a beer born out of community gathering and a shared love of chestnuts.

Castanea No.9 is the result of a collaborative effort between head brewer Alex Rhinehart and the Southern Ohio Chestnut Company. During a planting party hosted by the company, Rhinehart struck up a conversation with chestnut grower and Route 9 Chestnut Cooperative member Amy Miller. They discussed the rich history of brewing with chestnuts and the potential for a revival of chestnut beers.

With the support of Rural Action and the Appalachian Staple Food Collaborative, Miller and Rhinehart set out to develop a unique chestnut beer. Castanea No.9 is the first in a line of chestnut-related brewing experiments, and it promises to be a hit among craft beer enthusiasts. This Chestnut Brown Ale is a testament to the power of community and the joy of sharing in the fruits of our labor. It is a celebration of the chestnut tree, which has a long history of bringing people together and providing community sustenance. Alex says, "Bringing Castanea No. 9 to life with Route 9 Chestnut Coop and their community action partners has been a wonderful project. Amy and I first discussed brewing with chestnuts several years ago, and it is fulfilling to see that conversation come full circle. This unique chestnut beer is a tribute to the rich culinary and brewing history of the chestnut and a testament to the power of community. We hope beer lovers and friends can join us in enjoying our first beer brewed with chestnuts."

Castanea No.9 is now available for purchase at Fibonacci Brewing Company's taproom, located at 1445 Compton Road in Cincinnati, Ohio. We invite all beer lovers to come and enjoy this one-of-a-kind beer and to raise a glass to the spirit of community.

Travelers at CVG Airport can now experience the local flavor of Braxton Brewing Co. The Covington-based brewery's new taproom in CVG opened Monday, April 24. The 1,500-square-foot space features a unique design with a menu offering Braxton's signature craft beers alongside seasonal offerings. Braxton says joining the airport is a testament to its community standing and how beloved its brand has become in Cincinnati and Northern Kentucky, solidifying them as a local staple.

"Creating a unique experience for our taproom guests is something we love doing. Now, with the addition of our taproom in CVG, that's an experience we'll be able to create for both locals and those traveling through," Jake Rouse, co-founder and CEO of Braxton, said in a press release in January. "It's important to us that this new taproom, just like our others, be a place where visitors can enjoy a craft beer and truly 'lift one to life.'"

CVG CEO Candace McGraw says they expect their passenger volume to grow in the coming years, and with more travelers, CVG needs more food and beverage options. "We are pleased to welcome Braxton to CVG because we know travelers like to see and experience local flavors and brands in the airport," McGraw said in the release.
